

Hoarding/Clutter Online Study

You are invited to participate in a research study about hoarding, conducted by Brianna D. Mann, M.A., a graduate student, and Brian Vandenberg, Ph.D., a faculty member in the Department of Psychology at the University of Missouri-St. Louis. Your answers will be completely confidential. The study will take between 30-60 minutes and will involve completing a series of short questionnaires and computer tasks assessing your demographic information, experiences with hoarding, creativity, and decision making. If you choose to participate, you will be entered into a raffle for an iPad.

You are eligible if you:

1. Are 18 or older, AND
2. Can read and write in English, AND
3. Think (or know) you might be a “hoarder”, “pack rat”, “clutter bug”, or “clutterer”

You are NOT eligible if you:

1. Think (or know) you might have obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD)
2. Hear voices or have ever been diagnosed with a psychotic disorder (e.g., schizophrenia).
3. Have had a traumatic brain injury (TBI)
4. Have dementia or Alzheimer’s Disease

If you would like to participate and are eligible, please send an email to brim2003@gmail.com, with the word, hoarding, in the subject line. You will receive an automated response with further instructions. Please note that there will be no way for the researcher to connect your email address or name to your responses on this survey.
